THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELER. A Brusomer Who Was Not the Gay and Feating Creature He is Usually Thought He was a traveling man. That fact was conveyed to the other passengers on the train by his good clothes and comfortable air of well-to-to-ativeness 19 well as by his general bearing of being accustomed to luxuries. He had the best fare at the best hotels, and his employer's money paid for it as an investment that would return sure dividends. For the rest, he was absent from his family nearly all the time, traveling night and day in close, hot, fraveling night and day in cross, not, ill-ventilated cars, worked like a machine at every town on his route, and earned a better salary than any professional man of his acquaintance. He was the first to make up a purse fer a widow or stranded fellow-traveler, and when he read the newspaper stories of the gay and festive drummer he won Springheld, O., says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters is a thoroughly good medi-cine. I use it in my practice, and find its action ercels all other forms of iron. In weakness, or a low condition of the system, Brown's Iron Bitters is usually a positive necessity. It is all that is claimed lered why in the course of his travel the never met any of the crast. The men he knew were, like himself, of honorable record, often inconvenience ing themselves to help one another or the way through. There was a stir at a station, and two pretty girls came aboard. They laughed and giggled; threw kisses to their friends at the depot; gave silly messages and good-byes, and, as the train started, they took a seat behind the commercial traveler. There were other seats vacant, but they preferred this, and rustled into it with a series of

    'That was his grandmother's picture," chimed in Nellie. "Good boy! carries it with him so that the old lady

Mr Ewings Reply Mr Charles A Lwing comes out to day in a card in his own defense, and though no one ' ho is conversant with the facts in the case can fail to see that it is "a in st lame and im potent conclusion," we do not propose to devote much time or space to it The gest of Mr Lwing's card is to the effect that he "d. In t know, his particular lack of information being the statements and charges contained in Mr Vails card publish ed in the British of Nov 3d, and which he claims he did not see until after the publication of the famous card to which his name was attached. That card appeared in the Review on the morning of Nov-4th-election day - and was circulat ed in hand bul form that day all over the county Mr Lwing dies not say at what hour he inst saw the Rr PUBLI IN of the 3d, but he admits that the charges it contained were "a total eurpr se" to him, and though he does not say so, the inference is plain that he would have refused to sign the carl it he had known of these charges It is not without a tinge of regret that we are compell ed to say that this confession comes a trifle late in the day, and that it would have been better it Mr Ew ing had repuliated his connection with the matter as earl, on the morning of the 4th is he learned of the charges contained in Mr Vail's letter published on the afternoon of the 3d He certainly must have heard of them acon after his return from Boody in that we never heard of any protest coming from him was not ready to step into this pitfall which had been dug before the assembly against the circulation of hi card lie was not ready to commit the blas in hand till form all da, on the 4th at the polls, nor have the people ever before had even the admission from that his friendship had been for thither was married.

What are the Facts? The enemies of Judge Smith their efforts to find something against him after his 12 years of service, having failed to find any real fault catch at all sorts of straws. The Herald says that only four days court are held per week, and the people are put to extra costs Now what are the facts? For many years after Judge Smith was ele vated to the bench he held court six days a week and also had night see sions as late as midnight. So hard did he work to dispatch litigation that was then piled mountain high on our dockets, that the lawyers, court officers and jurors were tired out and stood amazed at the won derful vitality of the Judge At last the lawyers, jurors and court officers requested the Judge to cease the night sessions of court, which on their request he did, but continued to hold court every day in the week The holding of court on Saturday was not liked by lawyers or others having business with the court It was urged that all after being in court for ave days, needed Saturday to prepare for Sunday Over a year ago Mr Buckingham arose in the court room and expressed the above sentiments and requested Judge Smith to cease holding court on Sat urday, and in this he was warmly seconded by both Mr Ewing and Mr. Cres, and the bar generally Now these same persons who were the cause of this change are attempt ing to make capital out of it for the benefit of Mr. Ewing. These are the facts as they are known to the bar of Macon county, and judged by them this attempt to injure Judge Smith must also fail.

My friends urged a trial of Athlophoros. I had no faith. Being induced I tried it Strange to say, two doses gave relief from pain. Three bot tles freed me from disease and brought me out. Have had no return of it.

Strange you say. Not a bit of it. The right remedy was in hand. That is all there was of it. Athlopheros was discovered by a rhenmetic and neuralgiosufferer—a colentief, a man who despaired of oure, yet who thought too much of nature to conclude that she was a niggard, and would breed ills she refused to cure. He struck it, not by accident, but by coupling causes and results. How well he struck it let W. C. and laundry gentlemen? Nay, not so

The first laundry gentleman marked everything I had with a big black X in indelible ink, save only my excuse my blushes—hose. These dainty little fabrics of silk and worsted, with faint straces of cotton, he labeled by sewing at the Great Western Satin Gloss Laundry, where the man with the indelible ink labeled everything XO, big and black, and sewed additional patches on my -ahem! hose. I next corralled my things at the establishment of Ping ing, and when a brand of blue ink came into the plot at Council Plut's and was east for XOA, I sat up half the night meading my things. I am fond of literature anyhow, and when the mental pabulum on my linen was reinforced at Concordia, Kan., by the addition of VZ in a black circle to the bill of tare, I began to look about for a publisher. At Kansas City Hang Hi worked

Now, I want to know if this is fair?

It wasn't my fault that the other laun-
